Growth in Singapore

AS-Schneider moves into a larger facility in Far East metropolis

AS-Schneider Asia-Pacific Pte. Ltd. is expanding. The Singapore subsidiary of the Swabian (Germany) company Armaturenfabrik Franz Schneider GmbH + Co. KG (AS-Schneider) has moved to larger premises. In addition to sales and warehouse, assembly will be integrated into the facility.

Founded in Nordheim (Germany) in 1875, the approx. 300-strong family-owned company AS-Schneider is now one of the world's leading manufacturers of instrumentation valves and manifolds. AS-Schneider Asia-Pacific has been part of the Swabians' global network since 2011 – with great success: The company currently employs seven people in the Far East metropolis. The small but highly motivated and qualified team has doubled sales since being established. Quickly outgrowing the original 80 square meters of office space, they moved into new premises with a total of 270 square meters on July 1. The extra space will mainly be used to accommodate the warehouse and the newly added assembly department.

The decision to offer assembly on-site in the future was made after intensive customer discussions and will lead to faster response times. In many large projects, the time factor plays an important role – for an idle nuclear power plant, for example, every hour of downtime represents a financial loss.

Over a hundred valves a day will be assembled directly on-site in Singapore in the future. "Flexibility and speed are clear competitive advantages," says Tim Kohler, Managing Director of AS-Schneider Asia-Pacific. He anticipates that the new assembly offering will boost sales even further – with a positive side effect for the company's headquarters in Nordheim (Germany): "The increased need for components will increase production at our plants in Germany." Tim Kohler is sure of it.
